I feel so lucky to have the chance to get work experience abroad at the beginning of my career through the Erasmus+ Internship Program. During Summer, I worked as Marketing Intern in one of the prominent tech companies in Lund, Sweden, which is the birthplace of many pioneer international brands inventions Working at a Swedish company in such an innovative city provided me with great networking opportunities, hands-on experience with a foreign market in a multicultural environment, improved soft skills such as cultural adaptability, confidence, resilience, and definitely made my CV stand out! In a globalized business world, I recommend everyone to seize such opportunities to enhance career prospects.

Participating in the Erasmus+ Internship program has been one of the best decisions I have made. I did a very fulfilling internship that has taught me a lot. I always wanted to pursue my work life outside of the country and this opportunity has provided me with many necessary things for taking the first step towards reaching my goals. The whole process of taking a job in a foreign country provides many skills, including interviewing for a job, working with different nationalities and cultures; understanding, learning and adapting to the regulations of a new country, all of which also boosts your confidence to be successful at your career prospects.

Physics & Electrical and Electronics Engineering

I have participated Erasmus+ Internship program at Vrije Universiteit (VU) Amsterdam as an Electrical and Electronics Engineering and Physics bachelor intern student. This program has enabled me to engage the scientific environment of The Netherlands from different aspects. I have also experienced the unique Dutch innovation culture of bringing products into the market from an engineering view. During my traineeship, I met with people who have given me some insights in science and industry about what to expect from working in those areas. Overall, I have gained invaluable social, academic and professional skills through this program and I strongly suggest everyone to apply for it.

I had the chance to do my internship via Erasmus+ program and I consider myself very lucky not only because of the financial support but also the because of the honor of being a member of the Erasmus family. Being an Erasmus+ internee have helped me a lot through this journey, in terms of both finding an internship and also the recognition of the internship by my own faculty. This was a very important milestone for my education and my future career, as I intend to continue my career in Germany. Therefore, I am very grateful to the OIP Staff for making this internship possible for me.
